

ORCID IDENTIFIER

Your unique identity in the research world

ORCID iD is a unique digital identifier linked to you and your work. It makes your work discoverable and ensures you are distinguished from other researchers

What does it mean?

Open Researcher and Contributor ID

The ORCID community is growing fast:

- 6.5 million+ researchers with registered ORCID iDs
- Over the past 12 months, 1 million+ new individuals registered

10 GOOD REASONS

TO GET AN ORCID ID

Whenever and wherever you publish – your ORCID iD remains the same

Changing institutions, moving to another country, changing your name will never affect your ORCID iD

Ensures your published research is always attributed correctly

Free and easy to use

Can be integrated in your research workflows like manuscripts and grant submissions

Streamlines submissions:

A single name and password to register and sign in to different publishers' systems

The issue of several professionals sharing the same name is solved by this unique, persistent and global ID

Distinguishes you and your work

All your work featured under one profile for everyone to see:

The ORCID record is a professional profile that helps you connect with other researchers and the wider community

Includes your publications, peer reviewer activity and makes all your work instantly discoverable and recognisable

To find out more, visit www.springernature.com/orcid