

Supplemental material for submission to Trees: Structure & Function as a Research Article (June 2022)

Functional Seed Traits as Predictors of Germination and Seedling Growth for Species with Potential for Restoration in Caquetá, Colombia
María N. Nieto Guzmán^{1,2}, Luis C. Beltrán¹, Carlos H. Rodríguez², Lilia L. Roa-Fuentes¹

¹Pontificia Universidad Javeriana, Departamento de Ecología, Carrera 7 No. 40-62, Bogotá D.C., Colombia

²Instituto Amazónico de Investigaciones Científicas SINCHI, Sede Florencia, Calle 31A # 2E 11, Florencia, Caquetá, Colombia

Corresponding author: Luis Carlos Beltrán lcbeltran92@gmail.com

Online Resource 1: Functional group comparisons of mean (a) percent germination, (b) velocity of germination, and (c) germination vigor by pre-germination treatment. The LSFG functional group lacked an abrasion treatment. Error bars represent standard error. Letters above bars represent statistically significant differences ($p < 0.05$). Letters with interpuncts (·) represent marginally significant differences ($0.05 < p < 0.1$).

