

Title: 'It was very easy to become an isolationist': understanding patient quality-of-life following haematopoietic cell transplant.

Supportive Care in Cancer

Supplementary file A – Study advert

Lauren Young¹

Gemma Pugh¹

Christina Yiallouridou¹

Dawn Hart¹

Karen Dean¹

Robert Danby²

1. Anthony Nolan, London, United Kingdom

2. Oxford University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust, Oxford, United Kingdom

Corresponding author

Gemma Pugh

Anthony Nolan

2 Heathgate Pl

London

NW3 2NU

Email address: gemma.pugh@anthohnolan.org

Anthony Nolan is interested to know how receiving a transplant affected your quality of life

What are we doing?

We are interviewing patients and asking them to share their thoughts about quality of life post-transplant. We are also asking patients to share how they think quality of life data should be collected and used.

How can you help?

You can take part in an interview if you are aged 18 years or over and you have ever received a transplant.

We are particularly interested to hear from people who:

- belong to a Black, Asian or minority ethnic group
- live far away from a major treatment centre in a rural area
- receive benefits
- have caring responsibilities for children or elderly parents.

What's involved?

Interviews will be done over the phone or via video depending on your preference. Each interview will last about 45 minutes and will be very informal.

As a THANK YOU every person who takes part will receive a £25 shopping voucher!

To take part follow the link here:

saving the lives of people with blood cancer

anthohnolan.org

ANTHONY NOLAN