

Interplay between pond size and matrix extent drives odonate diversity patterns in a fragmented landscape

Biodiversity and Conservation

Charl Deaconⁱ, Michael J. Samways and James S. Pryke

Department of Conservation Ecology and Entomology
Faculty of AgriSciences
Stellenbosch University
South Africa

ⁱcharldeacon@sun.ac.za, corresponding author, 0000-0003-4601-2739

Online Resource 1 Lentic habitat types in northeast KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa. a) small pond in small patch, b) large pond in small patch, c) small pond in large patch, and d) large pond in large patch.

