

Table of contents

This study investigates the efficacy of cubosomes conjugated with hyaluronic acid (a ligand molecule for CD44), anti-CD221 antibodies, and iron oxide nanoparticles for localized delivery of helenalin to rhabdomyosarcoma (RMS) cells through two receptors and an external magnetic field.