

Title

Variations in Healthcare Provider Interactions and Treatment Satisfaction by Patient Race and Ethnicity: A Survey of Adults with Atopic Dermatitis

Authors

Candrice R. Heath¹, Bryan Dosono², Vivian Y. Shi³, Jennifer Suong^{4,5}, Wendy Smith Begolka², Elizabeth D. Bacci⁶, Melissa L. Constantine⁶, Julia R. Correll⁶, Beth Mitchell⁷, Amber Reck Atwater^{8,9}, Evangeline J. Pierce⁷, Raj Chovatiya^{10,11}

Affiliations

¹Howard University Department of Dermatology, Washington, DC, USA

²National Eczema Association, Novato, CA, USA

³Department of Dermatology, University of Washington, Seattle, WA, USA

⁴Southern California Dermatology, Santa Ana, CA, USA

⁵Harbor University of California Los Angeles, Torrance, CA, USA

⁶Evidera Inc., Wilmington, NC, USA

⁷Eli Lilly and Company, Indianapolis, IN, USA

⁸Previously with Eli Lilly and Company, Indianapolis, IN, USA

⁹Distinctive Dermatology, Vienna, VA, USA

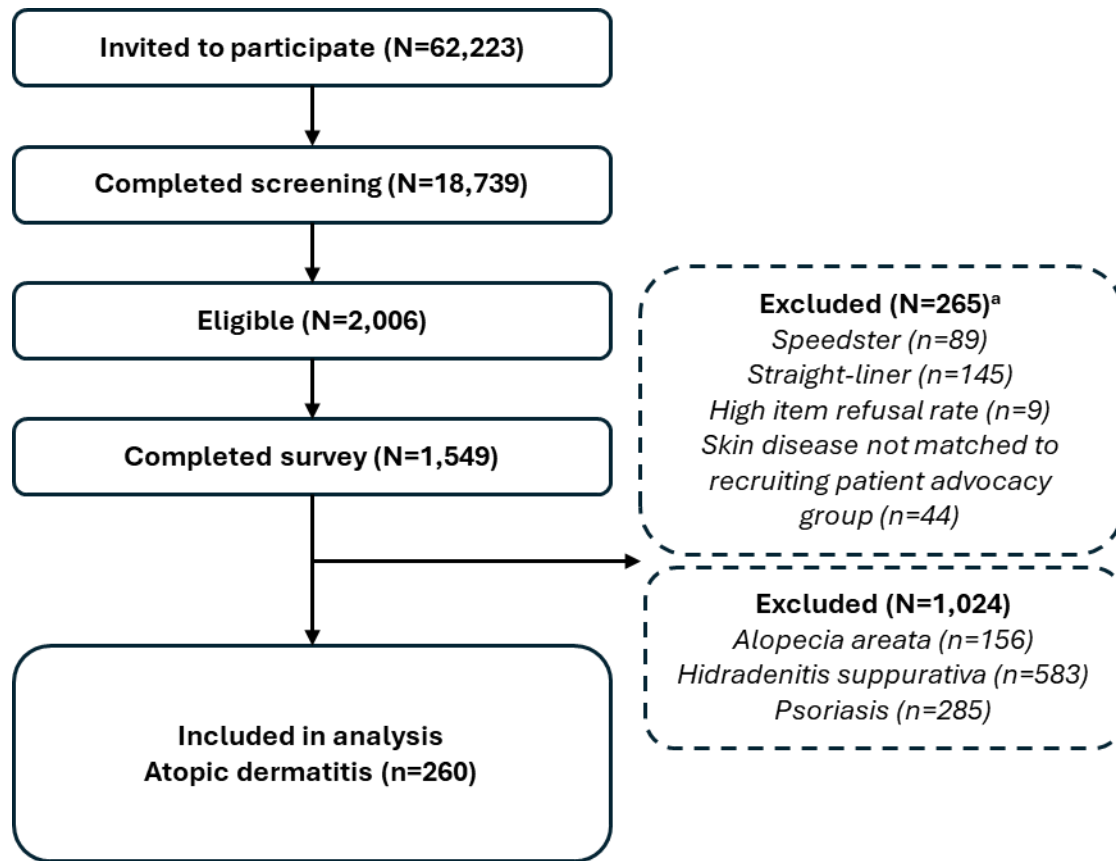

¹⁰Chicago Medical School, Rosalind Franklin University of Medicine and Science, North Chicago, IL, USA

¹¹Center for Medical Dermatology + Immunology Research, Chicago, IL, USA

Corresponding author

Raj Chovatiya, raj.chovatiya@gmail.com

Supplementary Material

Supplementary Material S1. Participant disposition for the entire survey involving participants with alopecia areata, hidradenitis suppurativa, psoriasis, and atopic dermatitis

^a Individual participants could have more than one reason for exclusion.