

Supplementary Figure 1. Photomicrograph of a representative fetus collected on gestation day (GD) 12 in C57BL6/N mice. The dashed red line indicates the incision line used to separate the main part of the fetal brain from the rest of the body. The fetal brain tissue was then further processed to measure cytokine and chemokine contents as described in the main manuscript.