High-throughput screening of zwitterion-based coatings towards improved mechanical stability and drug-loading capacity

Supplementary Figure 1. The representative optical images of intact spots, slightly damaged spots, seriously damaged spots, and completed removed spots. The colors of the lines below images correspond to the colors exhibited in heat maps.

Supplementary Figure 2. The representative macroscopic images of the hydrogel coating spots after the immersion in Congo red solution for 24 h. The colors of the lines below images correspond to the colors exhibited in the three-dimensional histogram.
