

Supplementary Information

Diagnosis of a model of Duchenne muscular dystrophy in blood serum of mdx mice using Raman hyperspectroscopy

Nicole M. Ralbovsky^{a,b}, Paromita Dey^b, Andrew Galfano^a, Bijan K. Dey^{b,c,}, Igor K. Lednev^{a,b,c}

^aDepartment of Chemistry, University at Albany, SUNY, 1400 Washington Avenue, Albany, NY 12222, USA

^bThe RNA Institute, University at Albany, SUNY, 1400 Washington Avenue, Albany, NY 12222 USA.

^cDepartment of Biological Sciences, University at Albany, SUNY, 1400 Washington Avenue, Albany, NY 12222, USA

*Corresponding authors: Bijan K. Dey, Ph.D., email: bdey@albany.edu, and Igor K. Lednev, Ph.D., e-mail: ilednev@albany.edu

Supplementary Figure S1. The difference between the mean control and mean MDX spectra. The pre-processed difference mean blood serum spectra between Control and MDX (bold line) with ± 2 standard deviations (thin dotted lines) of the Control (blue) and MDX (red) donors' spectral data sets.