

Supplementary_material_appendix_4.

FIGURES 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23 from section 5. Results and discussion

Figure 12: Percentual evolution in the commitment and specificity of the companies' total climate disclosure.

Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 13: Proportional variation in the aggregated climate-disclosure volume, commitment, and specificity level in the studied companies.

Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 14: Percentual evolution in the aggregated specificity level of the committed-classified companies' climate disclosure.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 15: Proportional variation in the aggregated specificity level of the committed-classified companies' climate disclosure.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 16: Percentual evolution in the commitment and specificity of the companies' opportunity-related total climate disclosure.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 17: Percentual evolution in the aggregated specificity level of the opportunity-related committed-classified companies' climate disclosure.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 18: Percentual evolution in the commitment of the companies' opportunity and risk-related total climate disclosure.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 19: Aggregated total climate-disclosure volume comparison between ClimateBERT and fine-tuned models for the studied-companies by year.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 20: Proportional variation of aggregated climate-disclosure volume, commitment, and specificity level for the studied-companies with fine-tuned model.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 21: Comparison in proportional variation of aggregated commitment for studied-companies between ClimateBERT and fine-tuned models.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 22: Percentual evolution in the sentiment representation of the companies' aggregated climate-disclosure with the fine-tuned model.
Source: Authors' own creation

Figure 23: Percentual evolution in the TCFD-category representation in the companies' aggregated climate-disclosure with the fine-tuned model.
Source: Authors' own creation