

Circulating cardiovascular disease-associated microRNAs are associated with chronic kidney disease in elderly survivors of the Great East Japan Earthquake.

Ryosuke Fujii, Hiroya Yamada, Eiji Munetsuna, Mirai Yamazaki, Yoshitaka Ando, Koji Ohashi, Hiroaki Ishikawa, Haruki Shimoda, Kiyomi Sakata, Akira Ogawa, Seichiro

Kobayashi, Koji Suzuki, the RIAS study

Supplemental Table 1. Details of the self-administered questionnaire used in this study.

Items	Questions	Selection branch	Code for our analyses (n)
Smoking status	What is your smoking status?	1) never 2) ever 3) current	0) ever or never 1) current
Alcohol consumption	What is your status for alcohol consumption?	1) never 2) ever 3) current	0) ever or never 1) current

Relocating experience	How many times have you moved after the disaster?	1) none 2) once 3) twice 4) 3 times 5) ≥ 4 times	0) none 1) $\geq$ once
Degree of housing damage	(This item was assessed by dataset of the extent of damage for each administrative district with seven categories)	1) housing destroyed 2) flooded 3) partially housing destroyed 4) partially flooded 5) housing destroyed and partially flooded 6) partially destroyed and flooded 7) not flooded	0) no damage versus 1) $\geq$ partially destroyed
Current housing environment	Which residence do you mainly live in now?	1) own home 2) home of relative or acquaintance 3) evacuation center 4) prefabricated temporary housing 5) rented or new accommodation 6) other residence	0) others 1) living in a shelter
Kessler's scale (K6)	How often an individual has felt the following six items (nervous, hopeless, restless, or fidgety, so sad that nothing cheer them up, everything requires effort, and worthless) in the month?	5-point Likert scale	0) < 13 1) ≥ 13