

Supplementary Figure 1

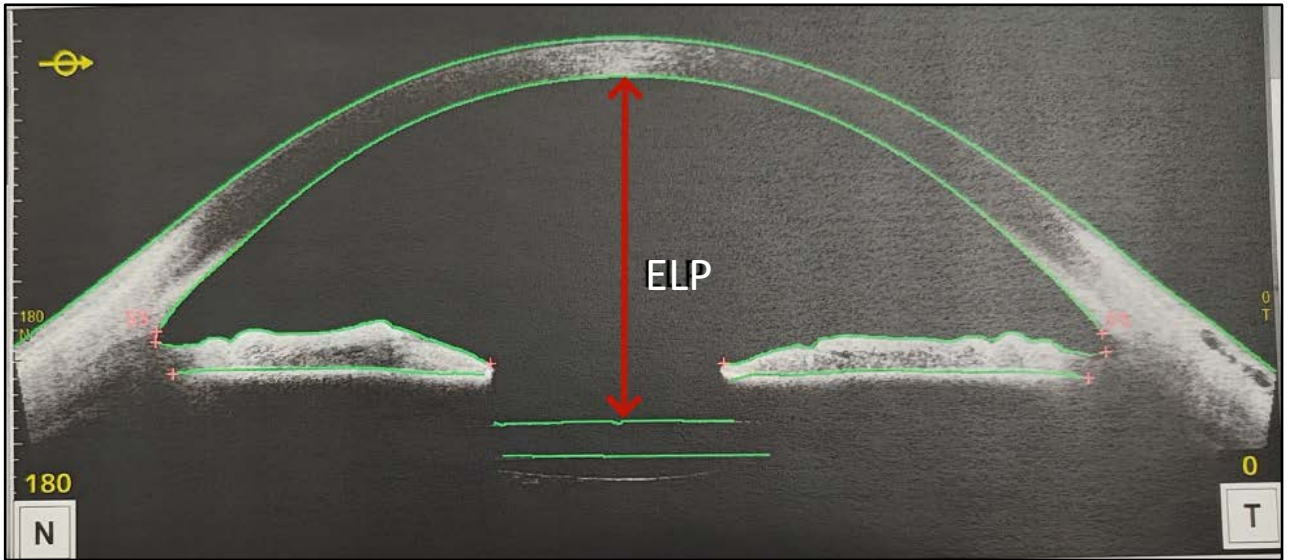

Figure S1. An illustration of effective lens position (ELP). ELP is defined as "the linear distance along the visual axis from the posterior corneal surface at the pupil center to the anterior surface of the intraocular lens."

Supplementary Figure 2

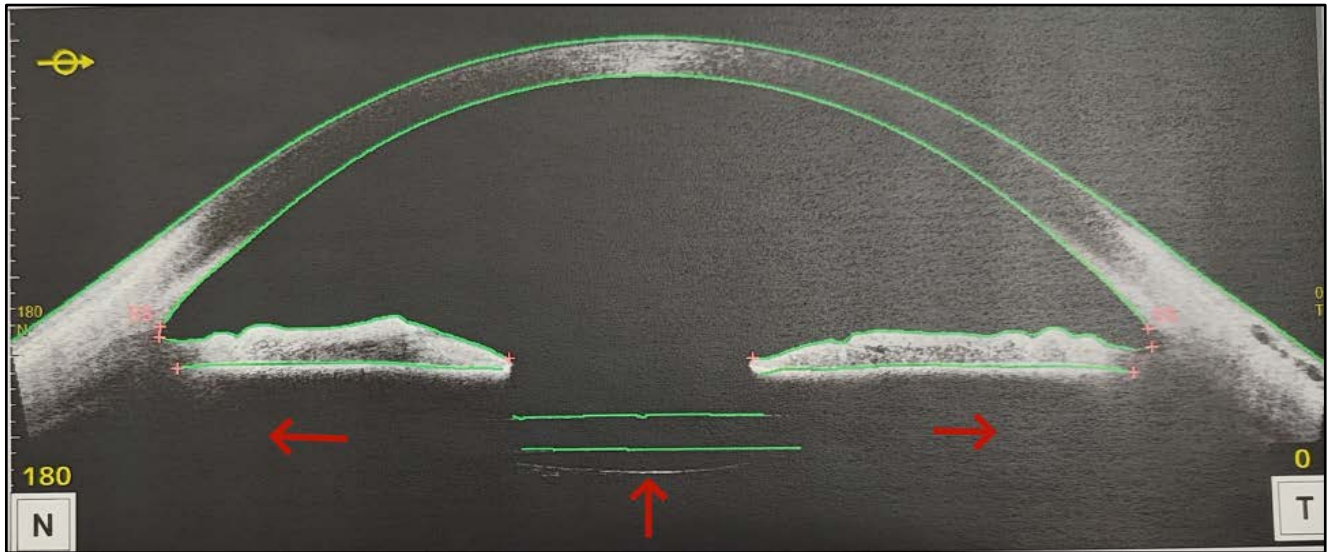

Figure S2. Following CTR implantation, the increased circumferential expansion force on the capsular bag results in anterior displacement of the posterior capsule.