

Learning Attitude Scale

- I am confident in my ability to learn the fundamental concepts introduced in this course.
- I believe I can perform exceptionally well on the assignments and examinations in this course.
- I am certain that I can master the skills being taught in this class.
- I am confident in my ability to comprehend the most challenging materials presented in the course readings.
- Taking into account the course difficulty, the instructor, and my own abilities, I believe I will achieve a good performance in this class.
- I feel anxious and uncomfortable when using computers.
- I worry about embarrassing myself in front of my peers when I am unable to write programs correctly.
- I feel frustrated by the number of bugs that appear in my programs.
- As program code becomes more complex, I find it increasingly difficult to maintain my concentration.
- I believe that I am not capable of understanding programming.
- I find learning programming to be both interesting and valuable.
- I am eager to explore and engage more deeply with content in programming courses.
- I believe that acquiring knowledge in programming is worthwhile.
- It is important to me to perform well in programming courses.
- I am motivated to seek additional information and expand my understanding of programming.
- I believe it is important for everyone to receive education in programming.