*Due to the sensitive nature of the questions including the questions of sexual activity, resistance from school authorities (which was evident during the implementation of comprehensive SRH education at schools) could have resulted in inability to achieve the required sample size and under representation of such communities in the sample. To overcome this issue, we selected registered private tuition classes and educational intitutions as all most all youth who attend government schools attend theses intitutions for additional knowledge gain.
