

Right now we are at the stage of synthesising and analysing the data from the workshop, and we would also like to collect some additional data. We would be grateful if you would please answer a few retrospective questions:

1. During the walk, what did you pay attention to the most? Which aspects of the city have you discovered through working with the exercise?
2. Did any particular sense/sensory stimulus make you differentiate between the three areas (park, street, road)?
3. What was the reason (memory, outstanding stimulus, knowledge of the city) for choosing this or that spot to record/describe an experience?
4. Did sensory stimuli influence your path/route (exploring or navigating / wayfinding or directional movement) through the city?

We intend to publish the results of the exercise. The data will be anonymised.
